book fuses economic and sociological perspectives on information sharing by means of informal interaction in a low technology cluster in a developing country In doing so the book sheds new light on settings where economic relations arise as emergent properties of social relations This book examines industrial innovation and microeconomic network behaviour among producers and clusters perceiving knowledge diffusion to be a socially spatial as much as a geographically spatial phenomenon This is achieved by employing two methods simulation modelling and quantitative qualitative and historical social network analysis The simulation model based on its findings motivates two empirical studies one descriptive case and one network study of low tech rural and semi urban traditional technology clusters in Kerala state in southern India These cases demonstrate two contrasting stories of how social cohesion either supports or thwarts informal information sharing and learning This book pushes towards an economic sociology approach to understanding knowledge diffusion and technological learning which perceives innovation and learning as being more social processes than the mainstream view perceives them to be In doing so it makes a significant contribution to the literature on defensive innovation and the role of networks in technological innovation and knowledge diffusion as well as to policy studies of Indian small firm and traditional technology clusters
