point of view espoused in each publication Family Matters Michael Sharpe, 2011-12-13 Family history is one of Britain's most popular pastimes. Around six million people in Britain are researching their family trees and genealogy is one of the top categories for online searches. The opening up of public records, the growth of family history societies and the introduction of computers and the internet have made the subject accessible to everyone. Yet while there is no shortage of books on how to do family history, few writers have attempted to put the field itself into a historical and social context and no popular history of the subject has been published in Britain in the last 50 years. That is why Michael Sharpe's new history is so significant. He traces the rise of genealogy from an esoteric interest of gentlemen and scholars to a mainstream hobby enjoyed by millions. He describes in vivid detail the landmark events and the personalities behind them, telling the story of the evolution of family history through the eyes of those involved. His original and highly readable work offers a fresh perspective on an activity that is not just a fast-growing leisure pursuit but also a rapidly expanding business sector and an important field for public policy.

Genealogical and Family History of Southern New York and the Hudson River Valley Cuyler Reynolds, 1914 Easy Family History David Annal, 2013-06-30 Easy Family History is the essential beginner's guide to family history research. Full of practical advice, it is ideal for anyone who wants to trace their roots. Transnationalism, Nationalism and Australian History Anna Clark, Anne Rees, Alecia Simmonds, 2017-07-04 Using Australian history as a case study, this collection explores the ways national identities still resonate in historical scholarship and reexamines key moments in Australian history through a transnational lens, raising important questions about the unique context of Australia's national narrative. The book examines the tension between national and transnational perspectives, attempting to internationalize the often parochial, nation-based narratives that characterize national history. Moving from the local and personal to the global, encompassing comparative and international research and drawing on the experiences of researchers working across nations and communities, this collection brings together diverging national and transnational approaches and asks several critical research questions: What is transnational history? How do new transnational readings of the past challenge conventional national narratives and approaches? What are the implications of transnational and international approaches on Australian history? What possibilities do they bring to the discipline? What are their limitations? And finally, how do we understand the nation in this transnational moment?
