Gender Issue Intergrate Pest Man:

Globalizing Integrated Pest Management George W. Norton, E. A. Heinrichs, Gregory C. Luther, Michael E. Irwin, 2008-02-28 As food demand has grown worldwide agricultural production has intensified with a concomitant expansion in pesticide use Concerns over pesticide induced health and environmental problems increased pest resistance to pesticides and continued losses due to pests have stimulated the search for alternative pest management solutions As a result integrated pest management IPM approaches have been developed and applied that rely on genetic cultural biological and information intensive pest management alternatives This book presents and critiques the participatory approaches that can be used to globalize IPM It describes the development deployment and evaluation of participatory IPM All the chapters include perspectives from both the US and developing country scientists who are on the front lines of IPM generation and diffusion The book is unique amongst IPM books in that it stresses policy analysis social and economic impact assessment multidisciplinary field research and technology transfer mechanisms

Community Integrated Pest Management in Indonesia Mansour Fakhri, 2003 Integrated Pest Management of Tropical Vegetable Crops Rangaswamy Muniappan, E. A. Heinrichs, 2016-11-23 It is an edited book with chapters written by multi disciplinary specialists in their specific subject areas It covers development of IPM components and packaging them for individual vegetable crops specifically targeted to tropical countries Scientific background for IPM components or tactics will be included There will be case studies of IPM packages developed and implemented in different countries The concept of IPM has been in existence for the past six decades however a practical holistic program has not been developed and implemented for vegetable crops in the developing countries Currently the IPM adoption rate in the tropics is minimal and there is a need for implementation of IPM technologies that are environmentally safe economical and socially acceptable We believe that adoption and implementation of IPM provided in this book will lead to significant reduction in crop losses and mitigate adverse impacts of pesticide use in the tropics This book is an outcome 20 years of research development and implementation of the IPM CRSP a project supported by USAID and administered by Virginia Tech in several developing countries along the tropical belt in Africa Asia Latin America and the Caribbean

Uncovering the pathways to gender equality and women's empowerment through agricultural research for development: Lessons from the Feed the Future innovation labs Eissler, Sarah, Bryan, Elizabeth, Magalhaes, Marilia, 2025-08-11 Gender equality and women's empowerment are important development goals for their intrinsic value as well as for achieving other important wellbeing outcomes such as improved health nutrition and food security Agricultural research for development plays an important role in understanding gender relations dynamics and inequalities and in identifying effective strategies and interventions to achieve these goals The Feed the Future Innovation Labs ILs were initiatives supported by the United States Agency for International Development USAID and led by U S universities in partnership with international and national research institutes with the aim to achieve poverty reduction food security nutrition and resilience objectives The ILs also aimed to facilitate women s empowerment and address gender inequality in agri food systems AFS This study aims to document categorize and identify learnings from gender related research produced by the ILs through an extensive desk review and key informant interviews KIIs with gender focal points researchers and directors at the ILs While recognizing the importance of capacity building for gender related research we only look at research products and do not review capacity building or other training materials for gender related research produced by the ILs As this study is focused on understanding gender related learnings we also do not include gender blind research products produced by the ILs Based on the final set of research outputs that have at least some focus on gender we then analyze the gender related research findings using the reach benefit empower and transform framework In addition we also explore the factors that enabled ILs to prioritize and produce gender related research and learnings We draw lessons about the types of research studies that have been carried out under the ILs and the insights that can be gleaned from these studies for designing agricultural innovations and interventions and understanding what works to address gender inequalities in agrifood systems Much of this work was gender focused and diagnostic or formative Fewer research studies employed causal methods to understand how interventions are influencing gender equality and women s empowerment in agriculture Only a subset of research focused on specific innovations or interventions which suggests more research is needed in this area particularly as new innovations are being tested and scaled as was the objective of many of the ILs We highlight areas where additional research is needed to inform investments and interventions going forward such as an increase in integrating gender informed approaches in research across disciplines gender related research that employs causal methods and in understanding the impacts of interventions that are gender transformative Finally we identify key enabling factors that helped ILs prioritize gender integration such as institutional leadership s support for gender integration sufficient time and budgets earmarked for gender work and staff and ensuring staff responsible for gender related research have requisite skills expertise and communication skills to work across interdisciplinary teams Current and future agricultural research for development projects should prioritize gender related research across their portfolios to strengthen attention to understanding how innovations and interventions can influence gender equality and women s empowerment in agriculture

Gender Issues in Integrated Pest Management in African Agriculture C. Malena,1994 In Africa women farmers are generally responsible for pest management activities Research has shown that the technological needs and priorities of women farmers differ from those of men but their specific needs are rarely addressed in the research and development of agricultural technology Women s access to new technologies is seriously undermined owing to the failure of extension systems to establish contacts with women farmers The book discusses the gender related socio economic factors that influence the creation adoption and effective implementation of IPM technologies

Integrated Pest Management in the Global Arena Karim M. Maredia,D. Dakouo,D. Mota-Sanchez,2003-01-01 This book presents experiences and successful

Abstracts on Tropical Agriculture ,1994 NRI Socio-economic Series ,1993 Women and IPM Elske Van de Fliert,1999 Rural women on average spend more time working on pest management than men Yet truly integrated pest management IPM is not possible without women nevertheless few publications are available This wide ranging book introduces many of the issues such as reasons for women s involvement or lack of it in projects as well as examples of gender sensitive extension programmes and health aspects involved Learning and Livelihoods A. Orr,2000 FAO Plan of Action for Women in Development Food and Agriculture Organization of the United Nations. Conference,1995 Agrindex ,1995 RISS ,1992 Review of Women's Studies ,1990 PAI ,1997 Journal of Studies in General Education ,2001 Experiences, Innovations and Issues in Agricultural Extension in Uganda Margaret Najjingo Mangheni,2007 Agricultural extensions systems were introduced in Uganda by the colonial administration in the early twentieth century It has been a key part of Uganda s agricultural development strategy albeit with changes and innovations in approaches institutional arrangements methods and strategies There has been a dearth documented information on the subject and this study now provides a systematic documentation and analysis of these changes and innovations with a view to drawing lessons to inform theory and practice and to avoid repetition of past mistakes The book is organised in three parts Uganda s Experiences with a Privatised contract Farmer owned Extension Approach Innovative Extension Methodologies and Training and Capacity Development for Innovation and Reform in Agricultural Extension Margaret Najjingo Mangheni is a senior lecturer in the Department of Agricultural Extension Education at Makerere University The contributors to the book have served in agricultural extension education as educators managers and field practitioners in Uganda and elsewhere

Outstanding Filipino Women Research Managers and Scientists in Agriculture and Natural Resources Madeline B. Quiamco,2001 Women Healing Earth Rosemary Radford Ruether,1996 Ecofeminists in the North must listen carefully to women in the South since common problems can only be solved by understanding cultural and historical differences When women of the South reflect on ecological themes these questions are rooted in life and death matters not in theory nor statistics As Ruether writes Deforestation means women walking twice as far each day to gather wood
