ratio $R_{AB,CD}$ of four points $A(a_1, a_2)$, $B(b_1, b_2)$, $C(c_1, c_2)$, $D(d_1, d_2)$ is given by $\frac{ac}{bd}$ where the expressions ac etc are used as abbreviations for $a_1c_1 + a_2c_2$ etc. This statement is readily verified by writing down the above ratio in terms of the nonhomogeneous coordinates of the four points. We will close this section by giving to the two homogeneous coordinates of a point on a line an explicit geometrical significance. In view of the fact that the coordinates of such a point are not uniquely determined a factor of proportionality being entirely arbitrary there may be many such interpretations. On account of the existence of this arbitrary factor we may impose a further condition on the coordinates x_1, x_2 of a point in addition to the defining relation $x_1/x_2 = x$ where x is the nonhomogeneous coordinate of the point in question. We choose the relation $x_1 - x_2 = 1$. If this relation is satisfied thus homogeneous coordinates subject to the condition $x_1 - x_2 = 1$ can be defined by choosing three points A, B, C arbitrarily.
