

Characteristics of Individualism

There are several characteristics of individualists as conveyed by Waldo in his essay "self reliance". These include the "I" identity, which according to him helps one to believe in his unique gifts from God. He also encourages people to think for themselves and trust in their deeds without considering societal disapproval.

In this regards, he tries to define genius as a characteristic of individualism and believing in one's thoughts. Waldo goes on to encourage self-worth as it gives people the confidence, responsibility and right to think for themselves without regard to societal disapprovals and conformity, among others. Other characteristics emphasized by Waldo include shunning societal disapprovals as well as foolish consistency (Western Culture Global 1).

Significance of individualism

Individualism as portrayed by Waldo in his essay on self reliance seeks to make geniuses and individualists who can think for themselves without involving influence from the society. Societies seek to ensure people conform to similar values and actions. In addition they emphasize the need to be consistent with these values. This is foolish consistency, according to Waldo, and he therefore encourages individuals to trust in themselves as they are uniquely created (eNotes.com, Inc. 1)

Conclusion

Ralph Waldo's essay on self reliance was written as early as 1930s but was first published in 1941. He encourages people to think for themselves and trust in their deeds without considering societal disapproval or other obstacles such as foolish consistency which the society emphasizes.

The author advocates for self reliance as an initial stage of development and not the goal. He also states that self reliance is not anti-community. In essence, he encourages individuals to believe in their potentials and put efforts to achieve them without distractions (Richardson 99).

Essays On Individualism:

Essays on Individualism Louis Dumont, 1986 Louis Dumont's Essays on Individualism is an ambitious attempt to place the modern ideology of individualism in a broad anthropological perspective. The result of twenty years of scholarship and inquiry, the interrelated essays gathered here not only trace the genesis and growth of individualism as the dominant force in Western philosophy but also analyze the differences between this modern system of thought and those of other nonmodern cultures. The collection represents an important contribution to Western society's understanding of itself and its place in the world.

Essays on Individuality Felix Musckett Morley, 2011-12 Contributing Authors Include John Dos Passos Conway Zirkle Richard Weaver And Others The Philosophy of Individualism Individualist bookshop limited, London, 1927

Someone, No One Kenelm Burridge, 2015-03-08 Examining the concept of individuality and the ideology of individualism in terms of a dialectic between the self and the social order, the author draws a distinction between the person as an identity—a someone who conforms to social roles and norms and the individual as a nonidentity—a no one who holds particular nonconformist perceptions of truth that result in conscious and independent moral discrimination and innovation. Originally published in 1979, The Princeton Legacy Library uses the latest print-on-demand technology to again make available previously out-of-print books from the distinguished backlist of Princeton University Press. These editions preserve the original texts of these important books while presenting them in durable paperback and hardcover editions. The goal of the Princeton Legacy Library is to vastly increase access to the rich scholarly heritage found in the thousands of books published by Princeton University Press since its founding in 1905.

Essays on Individualism, Secularism and Pessimism Georges Palante, 2020 Even among those who like M. Maurice Barrès by dilettantism and artistic posture are averse to the accents of sharp revolt or discouraged pessimism, individualism remains a sentiment of the impossibility that exists of harmonizing the private and the general. It is a determination to set free the first I to cultivate it in what it has of the most special, the most advanced, the most rummaged through, both in detail and in depth. The individualist says M. Barrès is he who through pride in his true I, which he isn't able to set free, ceaselessly wounds, soils, and denies what he has in common with the mass of men. The dignity of the men of our race is exclusively attached to certain shivers that the world doesn't know and cannot see and which we must multiply in ourselves.
