Introduction

What is this dissertation about?

This dissertation seeks to present a constructive theology from the perspective of Third Culture Kids (TCKs)<sup>1</sup>. TCKs are persons who, due to their parents' occupation, spent a significant time growing up outside of their parents' home culture. While taking part in their parents' home culture (first culture) and host culture (second culture), their sense of belonging tends to be with others of a similar background (third culture). TCKs, shaped by high mobility and cross-cultural experience, often have a sense of living betwixt and between different worlds. The idea for this dissertation grew out of a personal dissatisfaction with the lack of a serious theology for and by TCKs. While the 20th century has seen the emergence of context specific theologies, there does not exist a proper contextualized 'TCK theology'. Not only has theology failed to specifically address the concerns of TCKs but theology also has neglected incorporating TCKs' insights into its discourse.

This dissertation stands on two presuppositions: First, I believe theology has a meaningful contribution to make to TCKs and, second, I believe TCKs have a valid contribution to make to theology. Rather than merely 'repackaging' traditional theology to make it more acceptable to TCKs (thereby treating TCKs as the object of theology), this work seeks to identify key areas of importance to TCKs and construct a theology shaped by these very concerns (thereby making TCKs the subjects of theology).

I believe the long Christian tradition has resources to offer to enrich TCKs' global lives. I have chosen three areas in theology, (1) the doctrine of God, (2) Christology, and (3) Soteriology, to sketch a broad picture of a constructive theology that can meaningfully address TCKs' questions of belonging and purpose. Similarly,

<sup>1</sup> By 'TCK' I mean to include 'Adult TCKs (ATCKs)'. Other names for TCKs are: Global Nomads, Third Culture Individuals. More specifically TCKs can be: Missionary Kids, Oil Kids, Military Brats, Diplomat Kids etc. See also: Ruth E. Dorrien,2006-01-01 In this first of three volumes Dorrien identifies the indigenous roots of American liberal theology and demonstrates a wider longer running tradition than has been thought The tradition took shape in the nineteenth century motivated by a desire to map a modernist third way between orthodoxy and rationalistic deism atheism It is defined by its openness to modern intellectual inquiry its commitment to the authority of individual reason and experience its conception of Christianity as an ethical way of life and its commitment to make Christianity credible and socially relevant to modern people Dorrien takes a narrative approach and provides a biographical reading of important religious thinkers of the time including William E Channing Ralph Waldo Emerson Horace Bushnell Henry Ward Beecher Elizabeth Cady Stanton and Charles Briggs Dorrien notes that although liberal theology moved into elite academic institutions its conceptual foundations were laid in the pulpit rather than the classroom Religion within the Limits of History Alone Demian Wheeler,2020-09-01 Among the greatest challenges facing religious thinkers today is that created by historicism the notion that human beings and their myriad understandings of reality are utterly historical conditioned by contingent circumstances and tied to particular contexts In this book Demian Wheeler confronts the historicist challenge by delineating and defending a particular trajectory of historicist thought known as pragmatic historicism Rooted in the German Enlightenment and fully developed within the early Chicago school of theology pragmatic historicism is a predominantly American tradition that was philosophically nurtured by classical pragmatism and its intellectual siblings naturalism and radical empiricism Religion within the Limits of History Alone not only undertakes a detailed genealogy of this pragmatic historicist lineage but also sets forth a constructive program for contemporary theology by charting a path for its future development Wheeler shows that pragmatic historicism is an underdeveloped resource for contemporary theology since it offers a model for normative religious thought that is theologically compelling yet wholly nonsupernaturalistic deeply pluralistic unflinchingly liberal and radically historicist Process Studies ,1990 American Journal of Theology & Philosophy ,1991 Constructing Constructive Theology Jason A.
