Essays on Nonconceptual Content York H. Gunther, 2003 Recent work by philosophers of mind and psychology on nonconceptual content     Kant and Non-Conceptual Content Dietmar H. Heidemann, 2014-06-11 Conceptualism is the view that cognizers can have mental representations of the world only if they possess the adequate concepts by means of which they can specify what they represent By contrast non conceptualism is the view that mental representations of the world do not necessarily presuppose concepts by means of which the content of these representations can be specified thus cognizers can have mental representations of the world that are non conceptual Consequently if conceptualism is true then non conceptualism must be false and vice versa This incompatibility makes the current debate over conceptualism and non conceptualism a fundamental controversy since the range of conceptual capacities that cognizers have certainly has an impact on their mental representations of the world on how sense perception is structured and how external world beliefs are justified Conceptualists and non conceptualists alike refer to Kant as the major authoritative reference point from which they start and develop their arguments The appeal to Kant attempts to pave the way for a robust answer to the question of whether or not there is non conceptual content Since the incompatibility of the conceptualist and non conceptualist readings of Kant indicate a paradigm case hopes have risen that the answer to the question of whether Kant is a conceptualist or a non conceptualist might settle the contemporary controversy across the board This volume searches for that answer This book is based on a special issue of the International Journal of Philosophical Studies     Kant and Non-Conceptual Content Dietmar Heidemann, 2014-06-11 Conceptualism is the view that cognizers can have mental representations of the world only if they possess the adequate concepts by means of which they can specify what they represent By contrast non conceptualism is the view that mental representations of the world do not necessarily presuppose concepts by means of which the content of these representations can be specified thus cognizers can have mental representations of the world that are non conceptual Consequently if conceptualism is true then non conceptualism must be false and vice versa This incompatibility makes the current debate over conceptualism and non conceptualism a fundamental controversy since the range of conceptual capacities that cognizers have certainly has an impact on their mental representations of the world on how sense perception is structured and how external world beliefs are justified Conceptualists and non conceptualists alike refer to Kant as the major authoritative reference point from which they start and develop their arguments The appeal to Kant attempts to pave the way for a robust answer to the question of whether or not there is non conceptual content Since the incompatibility of the conceptualist and non conceptualist readings of Kant indicate a paradigm case hopes have risen that the answer to the question of whether Kant is a conceptualist or a non conceptualist might settle the contemporary controversy across the board This volume searches for that answer This book is based on a special issue of the International Journal of Philosophical Studies     Modeling and Using Context ,2005     The Southern Journal of Philosophy ,2007     Proceedings and

Borchert, 2006 This volume covering entries from Determinables and determinates to Fuzzy logic presents articles on Eastern and Western philosophies medical and scientific ethics the Holocaust terrorism censorship biographical entries and much more      Disjunctivism Alex Byrne, Heather Logue, 2009 Classic texts that define the disjunctivist theory of perception      Consciousness in Action Susan L. Hurley, 1998 A standard view conceives perception as input from world to mind and action as output from mind to world with the serious business of thought in between Hurley criticizes this picture and considers how the interdependence of perceptual experience and agency at the personal level of mental contents and norms may emerge from the subpersonal level of underlying causal processes and complex dynamic feedback systems Hurley traces these themes from Kantian and Wittgensteinian arguments through to recent work in neuropsychology and in dynamic systems approaches to the mind providing a bridge from mainstream philosophy to work in other disciplines      The British National Bibliography Arthur James Wells, 2006      The Philosopher's Index ,2008 Vols for 1969 include a section of abstracts      The Contents of Experience Tim Crane, 1992-03-12 The nature of perception has long been a central question in philosophy It is of crucial importance not just in the philosophy of mind but also in epistemology metaphysics aesthetics and the philosophy of science The essays in this 1992 volume not only offer fresh answers to some of the traditional problems of perception but also examine the subject in light of contemporary research on mental content A substantial introduction locates the essays within the recent history of the subject and demonstrates the links between them The Contents of Experience brings together some prominent philosophers in the field and offers a major statement on a problem central to current philosophical thinking Notable contributors include Christopher Peacocke Brian O Shaughnessy and Michael Tye      Manuscrito ,2013

Longstanding issues concerning a proper theory of the structure of concepts are tackled in this collection of essays by Simon Baron Cohen Peter Carruthers and a distinguished cast of other scientists and philosophers      The Literature of Jealousy in the Age of Cervantes Steven Wagschal, 2006 Frequent and complex representations of jealousy in early modern Spanish literature offer symbolically rich and often contradictory images Steven Wagschal examines these occurrences by illuminating the theme of jealousy in the plays of Lope de Vega the prose of Miguel de Cervantes and the complex poetry of Luis de Gongora Noting the prevalence of this emotion in their work he reveals what jealousy offered these writers at a time when Spain was beginning its long decline Grounding his study in the work of thinkers ranging from Vives and Descartes to Freud and DeSousa Wagschal also draws on classical antiquity to unravel myths that impinge upon the texts he considers By showing that the greatest hyperbole of each of these writers is a representation of jealousy he calls for a reconsideration of an era's literary giants arguing not only for a reinterpretation of settled views on Cervantes but also for a reconsideration of Gongora's role in the development of modern European aesthetics With its insights into the interrelationships among literature art and society Wagschal's study offers background theory for analyzing the emotions in literature and is the first book to treat an emotion in any national literature from the perspective of contemporary philosophy of mind With its insights into the jealous mind it raises issues relevant both to the early modern period and to our contemporary world BOOK JACKET
