academics are returning to the ethnography arena and the study of police in situ to explain the evocative worlds of the police. The list of ethnographic sites is vast and all have fed the rejuvenation of ethnographic endeavour. Together they suggest innovation, theoretical depth, broad geographical boundaries, multi-site experiments and multi-disciplinarity, all of which are central to the exploration of police and policing in the twenty-first century. This Handbook encapsulates the revival of police ethnography by exploring its multidisciplinary field and cataloguing the ongoing ethnographic work. It offers an original and international contribution to the field of police studies and research methods, providing a comprehensive and overarching guide to police ethnography. We see the previous classics in every page and still note the influence of the early ethnographers. At the same time, we see the innovative breadth and diversity of these narratives. The aim of this Handbook is to highlight the mosaic that is police ethnography at a point in time and note with pleasure its contribution to the field once more.

Ethnography may be messy, difficult and at times uncooperative, but its results offer a unique insight into the perspectives of people and organisations that can hide in plain sight. An accessible and compelling read, this Handbook will provide a sound and essential reference source for academics, researchers, students and practitioners engaged in police and criminal justice studies.

Feminist Ethnography Dána-Ain Davis, Christa Craven, 2016-06-01. What is feminist ethnography? What is its history? How can its methods be applied? How is feminist ethnography produced, distributed and evaluated? How do feminist ethnographers link their findings to broader publics through activism, advocacy and public policy? Investigating these questions and more, this cross-cultural and interdisciplinary new text employs a problem-based approach to guide readers through the methods, challenges and possibilities of feminist ethnography. Dána-Ain Davis and Christa Craven tease out the influences of feminist ethnography across a variety of disciplines, including women's and gender studies, critical race studies, ethnic studies, education, communications, psychology, sociology, urban studies and American studies. Feature elements of the text include Essentials, excerpts from key texts in the field, Spotlights, interviews with feminist ethnographers and suggested assignments and readings. The text concludes with a conversation among contemporary feminist ethnographers about what feminist ethnography looks like today and into the future.
