Southeastern Europe 2002 Wayne C. Thompson, Publications Stryker-Post, 2002-08 Nationalism in Late and Post-Communist Europe Egbert Jahn, 2008 The breakdown of the Communist party rule was accompanied by an unexpected renaissance of nationalism and secessionism Of the nine Communist states only five nation states have survived Whereas the German Democratic Republic became unified with the Federal Republic of Germany the three multinational states dissolved into 16 hybrid ethno-national states and two states of federated nations The latter remain imperiled in their territorial integrity In all countries state and ethnic nationalism combine in peculiar ways which leaves room for sub-national stateness and various other forms of ethnic and national heterogeneity In this volume experts describe the unfolding of nationalism in each of the post-Communist states during the period of upheaval from 1985 to 1995 First the relationship of the titular ethnic group with its own ethnic nationalism is discussed as well as the nationalism that refers to the whole state including the minorities This relationship influences the way the states treat the minorities which often aim for sub-statensness or at least for representation through a political party organization Biographical Dictionary of Central and Eastern Europe in the Twentieth Century Wojciech Roszkowski, Jan Kofman, 2016-07-08 Drawing on newly accessible archives as well as memoirs and other sources this biographical dictionary documents the lives of some two thousand notable figures in twentieth century Central and Eastern Europe A unique compendium of information that is not currently available in any other single resource the dictionary provides concise profiles of the region's most important historical and cultural actors from Ivo Andrić to King Zog. Challenge and Change in Education Bryan T. Peck, Annabelle Mays, 2000. This book is concerned essentially with the compulsory schools and the work of teachers following rebirth or the regaining of independence in Estonia, Latvia, and Lithuania. Although often considered en bloc, each country has its own history, its own culture, and its own literature. There are important linguistic and religious distinctions to be made, as well as distinctive trading liaisons, both currently and historically. For the Baltic States, the final decade of the twentieth century has been turbulent in the extreme, and the 1990s have posed major challenges to teachers and to school directors. Not the least of these has been the challenge of regaining independence and nationhood after years of Soviet occupation. There has also been significant privatisation and a slow but purposeful change from a command to a market economy. Changing the curriculum may be easy; changing the mind, by comparison, may well be a more lengthy process. For the future, the Baltic States seek membership of the European Union within the first decade of the new millennium. There will be opportunities for schools to develop closer links with the West to promote exchanges of teachers and pupils and to join in networks promoting the European dimension in different ways.

The Harriman Institute Forum, 1993-09. Eastern Europe and the Commonwealth of Independent States, 1997. Nordic, Central, and Southeastern Europe, 2003 Wayne C. Thompson, 2003. Congressional Record United States. Congress, 1963. Area Handbook Series, 1996. The Nationalities Question in the Post-Soviet States Graham Smith, 1996. This volume examines nationality and ethnic relations in the post-Soviet states. It takes account of the changes since the break up of the Soviet Union in 1989, provides overviews of nationalities policy in the Soviet period and the post-Soviet states, and covers the different nationalities.

History and Change Anu Lahtinen, Kirsi Vainio-Korhonen, 2004. Historical research is connected to the idea of change, and in our ways of understanding it. Inspired by the past and gazing towards the future, historians are needed as critical and self-critical participants in the search for changes and new directions. These changes are discussed in this book based on the themes and papers presented at the History and Change Conference, which was organised in autumn 2001 at the University of Turku. The themes of the conference were Changing Roles of Women and Men, Changing Cultural and Technical Environment, and Changing Politics in 20th century Europe, and the contributions to this book follow these lines. Each of the authors of the seventeen articles in History and Change observes change from their own starting point, which highlights the different ways in which the concept of change is woven into the pattern of historical research.
