The role of ethnicity in identity development Graciela Lopez,1996

Ethnic Identity and Ethnic Political Development Yongguang Ge,1985

Racial and Ethnic Identity Herbert W. Harris,Howard C. Blue,Ezra E. H. Griffith,1995 Essays explaining the psychological processes leading to the development of racial and ethnic identity

We are a People Paul R. Spickard,W. Jeffrey Burroughs,2000 As the twentieth century closes ethnicity stands out as a powerful force for binding people together in a sense of shared origins and worldview But this emphasis on a people s uniqueness can also develop into a distorted rationale for insularity inter ethnic animosity or as we have seen in this century armed conflict Ethnic identity clearly holds very real consequences for individuals and peoples yet there is not much agreement on what exactly it is or how it is formed The growing recognition that ethnicity is not fixed and inherent but elastic and constructed fuels the essays in this collection Regarding identity as a dynamic on going formative and transformative process We Are a People considers narrative the creation and maintenance of a common story as the keystone in building a sense of peoplehood Myths of origin triumph over adversity migration and so forth chart a group s history while continual additions to the larger narrative stress moving into the future as a people Still there is more to our stories as individuals and groups Most of us are aware that we take on different roles and project different aspects of ourselves depending on the situation Some individuals who have inherited multiple group affiliations from their families view themselves not as this or that but all at once So too with ethnic groups The so called hyphenated Americans are not the only people in the world to recognize or embrace their plurality This relatively recent acknowledgment of multiplicity has potentially wide implications destabilizing the limited and limiting categories inscribed in for example public policy and discourse on race relations We Are a People is a path breaking volume boldly illustrating how ethnic identity works in the real world Author note Paul Spickard is Professor and Chair of Asian American Studies at UC Santa Barbara and is author of Mixed Blood W Jeffrey Burroughs is Professor of Psychology at Brigham Young University Hawaii

Politics of Ethnicity, Identity, and Religion Talip Küçükcan, 1999 A study of a micro Muslim community in Britain The book analyzes how Turkish identity is constructed in the diaspora through an ethnographic study of the role of family culture organizations and religious groups in the reproduction and transmission of traditional values to the young generation This book informs students academics politicians and policy makers in particular about the traditions values beliefs and cultural traits of an ethnic community with a multicultural context This study shows that Turkish and Islamic identities are not fixed and Muslims and Europe do not have a monolithic nature There is a large diversity of perspectives and approaches to Islam which indicate that any essentializing of others as a fixed category undermines pluralism and multiculturalism The book also argues that there is an emergent identity construction and a sense of belonging among young Muslims who would like to see themselves as a permanent part of European civic culture because their loyalty lies in where they live

Factors That Impact Ethnic Identity Development Lydia Sunkyung Chun, 2003

The State, Development and Identity in Multi-Ethnic Societies Nicholas Tarling, Terence Gomez, 2008-03-03 This book examines ethnic communities identity economy society and state and the links between them in a range of countries across Asia challenging the widely held belief that an authoritarian political system is necessary to ensure communal co existence in developing countries where ethnic minorities have a considerable economic presence
