Ecosystem Classification For Environmental Management:

Ecosystem Classification for Environmental Management Frans Klijn, 2013-03-09 When Lovelock published his Gaia it was for many people quite a relief We would not be able to destroy life on earth Lovelock illustrated this argument with a wealth of mechanistic feedback processes as we know them to occur in ecosystems These feedback processes would somehow lead the earth as a whole into a new equilibrium An equilibrium with life within be it in an entirely changed environment This is indeed let us be earnest a functioning ecosystem But what kind of ecosystem The Gaia hypothesis triggered a great deal of thought and discussion about what we actually require as an environment Bio diversity as an abbreviation of biotic diversity has since become the focal point of societal concern But again when we think about it we are not only interested in the sheer number of species on earth We also have ther interests nearby in our backyards in the surrounding countryside and on the various locations where we would like to spend our holidays We also want to preserve rare or characteristic species just for their own sake In fact we want species in viable populations to be part of communities that are self maintaining in environments where they belong We know we cannot ask for this without protecting their environment which is also our environment This is where the next fashionable term emerges sustainability Ecosystem Classification for Environmental Management Frans Klijn, 2014-01-15 The ecosystem is a central concept in modern ecology and is fundamental to sound environmental policy making Not all ecosystems are equally susceptible to human induced environmental change nor do we attribute equal value to all ecosystem types From a nature conservation point of view we are concerned about the spatial extension of ecosystems and their quality as well as about their responsiveness and recovery potential This requires the classification and mapping of ecosystems This book treats the why and how of such classification and mapping as a prerequisite to environmentally sound management aimed at sustainability and the preservation of biodiversity Existing concepts and procedures are modified for modern applications including susceptibility assessment environmental quality assessment and monitoring as well as predictive modelling for environmental impact assessments These procedures are illustrated by applying them to current environmental problems such as acidification eutrophication changing land use or groundwater lowering Written by a number of renowned landscape ecologists from several West European countries this book discusses a wealth of theories concepts and methods from plant ecology vegetation science physical geography and other environmental sciences composed in such a way to constitute practically applicable tools For scientists engaged in applied research and professionals in environmental planning Graduate students will find it inspiring as well as a source of practical advice Ecosystem Management ,1995 Environmental Management M. L. Hugo, 2004 About this book There are many books available on basic ecology as well as environmental management This book however is the only one on Southern Africa that integrates basic ecology with local management issues It addresses many relevant environmental issues in Southern Africa in an outcomes based educationally sound and non technical approach It explains in a pragmatic way how the resource base can be utilized in a sustainable way Both authors are well known for their passionate concern for the need for human kind to respect nature in order to survive on earth and more specifically for the sake of the children of South Africa to have a hopeful future Back cover Ecology Abstracts ,1989 Indexes journal articles in ecology and environmental science Nearly 700 journals are indexed in full or in part and the database indexes literature published from 1982 to the present Coverage includes habitats food chains erosion land reclamation resource and ecosystems management modeling climate water resources soil and pollution

Exploring the Theory and Application of Ecosystem Management ,1994 Ecology and Environmental Management Chris C. Park,1981 Forest and Stream Management in the Oregon Coast Range Stephen D. Hobbs,2002 This major volume presents a wealth of fundamental and applied research on managing Coast Range forest and stream ecosystems Written primarily for managers and resource specialists the book will also appeal to policymakers resource scientists forest landowners the conservation community and students interested in forestry fisheries and wildlife sciences

Waste Recycling and Resource Management in the Developing World B. B. Jana,2000 Ecological Economics and Sustainable Development Jeroen C. J. M. van den Bergh,1996 The effectiveness and scope of operational analysis of sustainable development is explored in this major new book Ecological Economics and Sustainable Development offers an integrated treatment of theory methods and applications for economic ecological analysis taking into consideration all the relevant interactions between economic development and physical and biological processes An overview of different theoretical perspectives based on insights from economics ecology and thermodynamics is followed by discussion of the dimensions of sustainable development including ethics and intergenerational equity sustainable and multiple use and spatial sustainability The second part of the book discusses methods for analysis covering the choice of indicators natural resource accounting and integrated static dynamic and spatial modelling and evaluation including multi criteria and cost benefit analysis Attention is also given to decision support and the choice of policy instruments Combinations of the various methods are applied in the final part of the book using case studies which cover a range of ecosystems and regions as well as a variety of issues and problems These studies clearly show the potential of policy oriented integrated economic ecological analysis for sustainable development

Geomorphic Processes and Riverine Habitat Joseph M. Dorava,2001-01-09 Published by the American Geophysical Union as part of the Water Science and Application Series Volume 4 Declines in fish populations and the loss of riverine habitat from human demands on the environment intensify year by year By considering why and how and by proposing restoration methods and mitigation strategies scientists respond forcefully to improve disturbed ecosystems Geomorphic Processes and Riverine Habitat presents results from recent research in fluvial geomorphology related to the assessment and characterization of riverine and riparian habitat and the response of biota to changes in their environment As our understanding of formative processes and how humans occupy and shape the environment grows we can minimize our impact while enhancing our ability to restore and rehabilitate degraded river systems For scientists researchers and students of riverine habitat Green Technologies for Environmental Management and Sustainable Development Rajiv Kumar Sinha, Margaret Greenway, 2004 State of the Environment Reporting P. C. Rump, 1996 Good environmental information is essential for effective sustainable development policy making and action planning Accurate information increases the chances for correct decisions This does not guarantee a healthier environment but its absence seriously impedes decisions which would lead to a sustainable future Ideally local sectoral corporate national regional and global reports should complement one other using for example common spatial units and databases In reality comprehensive and integrated information is often not available for today s decision makers The Source Book is designed to help to harmonize environmental reporting by encouraging the development of standard methods practices and terminology It evaluates and compares alternative approaches for the development production and dissemination of environmental information and combines the collective experience of environmental reporting covering all aspects of reporting from user needs to data supply The Ecology and Management of Aquatic-terrestrial Ecotones Robert J. Naiman, 1990 Environmental Management Glossary Soil and Water Conservation Society (U.S.), 2006 Has more than 4 000 terms commonly used in over 50 technologies The Ecological Basis for River Management David Harper, Alastair J. D. Ferguson, 1995-02-28 Based on a selection of papers presented at the International Symposium on the Ecological Basis for River Management in March 1993 it addresses the underlying ecological issues in the six major operational functions of river management water quantity water quality management of the natural river environment management of fish stocks and fisheries and catchment management Aquatic Sciences and Fisheries Abstracts, 1988 Tropical Forest Ecosystems of Trinidad Howard Paul Nelson, 2004 River Ecology and Management Robert J. Naiman, Robert E. Bilby, 1998 Touching all parts of the natural environment and nearly all aspects of human culture streams and rivers act as centres of organization within landscapes They provide natural resources such as fish and clean water transportation energy diffusion of wastes and recreation Today with unprecedented demands on streams and rivers by an exponentially increasing human population a basic ecological understanding of the structure and dynamics of running waters is essential for formulating sound management and policy decisions The vast Pacific coastal ecoregion of the United States contains an extraordinary array of physical settings and examples of the range of dynamics associated with rivers and their management The interface between the science and policy of natural resource management is illustrated by examples from this ecoregion including the protection of riparian forest the marbled murrelet salmon and amphibians International Books in Print, 1986
