Good Care Management:

Key Concepts in Social Gerontology Judith E Phillips, Kristine J Ajrouch, Sarah Hillcoat-Nalletamby, 2010-03-18 Far from a dictionary the concepts are portrayed as complex and conflicting definitions and usages are both noted and evaluated Each article includes a necessarily selective set of references and cross references to other concepts included in the book Moreover the coverage and evaluation of the concepts is right at the current leading edge in a rapidly moving field Victor Marshall Department of Sociology and Institute on Aging University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill The concepts are very clear and very relevant and fantastic for my group of undergraduate students I found each concept to be succinctly and simply captured holding enough information to satisfy initial cravings and complex enough to tempt further reading I had originally thought that this book would provide supplementary reading as part of my Healthy Ageing course but have changed my mind to essential reading now I have had the opportunity to read the entire book Dr Meredith Tavener Groningen University Social gerontology is a new and dynamic field reflecting the increasing interest in ageing across the world This book provides a readily accessible guide to well established and contested issues as well as new concepts emerging through cutting edge research in the discipline The entries give concise lucid knowledge on what constitutes the building blocks of social gerontology and sets out a clear review of the core concepts both classic and emerging in this subject area Each concept is explored in terms of its history application usefulness to theory and research and significance in practice They go beyond simple definitions of the concepts to look at how each issue has shaped the discipline of social gerontology today This book is authored by social gerontologists from the UK and the USA Together they present an interdisciplinary perspective and reflect a global approach to the presentation of key concepts in social gerontology

Evidence: Are clinicians engaged in quality improvement? , Managers in Long-term Care Malcolm L. Johnson,Lesley Cullen,Demi Patsios,1999 The reformulation of the regulation of long term care seen in the recent White Paper and Royal Commission in the UK has led to topical debates on long term care for older people Given that there are over 500 000 people in residential nursing and dual registered homes across the country there has until now been remarkably little research on the role of managers in the long term care sector the various tasks they undertake in the day to day operation of a care home and the qualities and qualifications they bring to their work This important study investigates the range of competencies which managers of long term care homes currently do and should possess The authors look in detail at managers and management in the long term care sectorpolicy change and the changing role of managersthe future way for trainingKey issues and recommendations are drawn out which focus on future training and the quality assurance framework needed in a new regulatory system Crucial questions are raised as to what this will cost and who will pay Managers in long term care is important reading for social services inspection staff and purchasers providers of care social policy academics students and those involved at all levels in the process of regulation itself Handbook of Social Work in Health and Aging Barbara Berkman,2006-02-09 The Handbook of Social Work in Health and Aging is the first reference to combine the fields of health care aging and social work in a single authoritative volume These areas are too often treated as discrete entities while the reality is that all social workers deal with issues in health and aging on a daily basis regardless of practice specialization As the baby boomers age the impact on practice in health and aging will be dramatic and social workers need more specialized knowledge about aging health care and the resources available to best serve older adults and their families The volume s 102 original chapters and 13 overviews written by the most experienced and prominent gerontological health care scholars in the United States and across the world provide social work practitioners and educators
