

A Few Remarks about the Lectionary after Fifty Years of Existence

HENRYK SŁAWIŃSKI

Pontifical University of John Paul II in Kraków, henryk.slawinski@upjp2.edu.pl

Abstract: This paper aims to present the historical development of the lectionary for use in the Holy Mass, then to summarize the principles of the present lectionary and its ecumenical meaning, more specifically, its influence on the protestant lectionary. Based on the historical facts and the recent documents of the Holy See, the proposal for partial renewal of the Sunday Lectionary will be discussed. The main method used in the study is the analysis of the historical sources, documents of the Holy See, and theological studies. The critical analysis and comparative method will lead to the synthetic presentation of postulates of the partial renewal of the present lectionary after fifty years of usage in the liturgy. The analysis conclusions provide suggestions for the enrichment of the lectionary: firstly, with the passages from the Old Testament read in their whole context, not only according to the harmonization with the text of the Gospel; secondly, with the thematic selection of the second reading compatible with the first reading, and the Gospel reading; thirdly, with the texts pointing out the role of women in the history of salvation.

Keywords: lectionary, Bible, liturgy

The liturgical community was at the center of the renewal of the Church by the Second Vatican Council. This explains the emphasis the Council Fathers put on actuosa participatio, i.e., active participation of the faithful in the holy liturgy. This was the aim of the liturgy renewal, explained in the Second Vatican Council's Constitution on the Sacred Liturgy (Sacrosanctum Concilium): "In this restoration, both texts and rites should be drawn up so that they express more clearly the holy things which they signify; the Christian people, so far as possible, should be enabled to understand them with ease and to take part in them fully, actively, and as befits a community" (SC 21).

One of the important elements of the renewed liturgy was the lectionary comprising the readings from Sacred Scripture. As stressed in the Second Vatican Council, these readings are the perennial and intrinsic part of the celebration of the Holy
