

Native Americans of the Great Basin

Native Americans of the Great Basin

Food
The Great Basin is created by mountains that create a basin. This basin keeps water from flowing out. The lands are dry. The climate is very hot in the summer and very cold in the winter.

People
Although many tribes settled in the area, the most well-known tribes were the Shoshone, Bannock, Washoe, Paiute, Ute, and Navajo.

Life
The tribes of this area were hunters and gatherers. They hunted for animals like sheep, squirrels, rabbits, deer, and birds. They also gathered seeds, berries, roots, and pinon nuts.

Housing
Because of their nomadic life, the tribes here had no permanent homes. They did occasionally return to their winter villages. They used animal skins, rawhide, and willows to make their homes. They also used animal skins to make clothing.

Clothing
During the hot summers, little to no clothing was worn. In the winter, people wore robes made of animal skins. Some people would wear rabbit-skin robes and some would wear sandals or leather moccasins.
