Environmental Taxes and Policies for Developing Countries

Neil Bruce
and
Gregory M. Ellis

Command-and-control environmental policies and market-based incentive policies differ in administrative cost, level of control over polluters, monitoring and compliance requirements, incentives for polluters to invest in pollution abatement, and fiscal consequences to the government.

Policy Research Working Papers disseminate the findings of work in progress and encourage the exchange of ideas among Bank staff and all others interested in development issues. These papers, distributed by the Research Advisory Staff, carry the names of the authors, reflect only their views, and should be read and cited accordingly. The findings, interpretations, and conclusions are the authors' own. They should not be attributed to the World Bank, its Board of Directors, its management, or any of its member countries.
