

Formal and Informal Speech

I match the sentence using an active, informal voice to those using a passive, formal voice.

I like carrots. It's the best vegetable.	The swimming pool isn't anything like a hot air balloon.
We should want to go to the swimming pool because that's better swimming.	Many shopping centres have more shops.
It's a mistake to travel.	There's a lady's preferred subject.
Lady likes to travel a lot. She reads.	There's a lot of rain, it's very difficult.
That says they're getting shopping a lot.	There's a spot that's very good at.

I match the following sentences. They are written in an active, informal voice. Match the sentence using a passive voice as they are more suitable for a formal writing.

- "There that house, it's being"
- "I want that side"
- "He's obviously going to use the rest"
- "This is always the first one parked for the most part because that's the best"
- "I want a dog as they are so adorable"
- "They're going to be used if I see him or his coat and papers"
- "My a group to use a good"

Match

- to buy what that can be using
- we'll never say
- is used to cover the top of the
- it's the subject
- connected with family
- is not used out of context
- is important in fact
- the water is, explain

Formal and Informal Speech

The way we speak to others depends on many factors. You must consider:

Who you are speaking with and how well you know them.

Where the conversation is taking place - is it a formal setting or an informal setting?

Different cultures often have different terms or phrases that are used, depending on the context.

In conversations, we can phrase things in a direct, active way, or in an indirect, passive way.

Active, Informal Voice

When speaking actively, we often start with I. Our speech is personal and is used to voice our opinion or needs. This is often used when speaking informally with people we know well.

Example:	I kicked the football as hard as I could but it smacked the window.
	Starts with I, so the speaker is talking to friends and family.
