How to Teach Handwriting Frank Nugent Freeman,Mary Lorette Dougherty,1923 Two mistakes of an opposite nature have been made in teaching writing The first is to expect writing to grow up incidentally without giving the child any specific training in the writing act The second is to suppose that teaching writing is some strange mysterious process which can be mastered only by special teachers who have had a large amount of technical training However writing can be taught by the grade teacher and there are strong reasons why it should be so taught Writing is an activity which the child performs in much of his her school work besides his writing lesson It is necessary that all the writing be done properly and it is the grade teacher who must see that it is properly done

Handwriting of the Twentieth Century Rosemary Sassoon,1999 This fascinating and wide ranging book charts developments in the teaching and study of handwriting over the course of the twentieth century The book shows how changing educational policies economic forces and inevitable technological advance have combined to alter the priorities and form of handwriting This long and sometimes sorry story tells also of the sheer pain and hard work of children forced to follow the style of the day and of the reformers who have sought to simplify the teaching and learning of handwriting over the years Illustrated throughout with examples from copybooks and personal handwriting from across the world the book is a compelling historical record of techniques styles and methods
