Explanatory Item Response Models A Generalized Linear And Nonlinear Approach:

Explanatory Item Response Models Paul de Boeck, 2004-06-29 This edited volume gives a new and integrated introduction to item response models predominantly used in measurement applications in psychology education and other social science areas from the viewpoint of the statistical theory of generalized linear and nonlinear mixed models The new framework allows the domain of item response models to be coordinated and broadened to emphasize their explanatory uses beyond their standard descriptive uses The basic explanatory principle is that item responses can be modeled as a function of predictors of various kinds The predictors can be characteristics of items of persons and of combinations of persons and items b observed or latent of either items or persons and they can be c latent continuous or latent categorical In this way a broad range of models is generated including a wide range of extant item response models as well as some new ones Within this range models with explanatory predictors are given special attention in this book but we also discuss descriptive models Note that the term item responses does not just refer to the traditional test data but are broadly conceived as categorical data from a repeated observations design Hence data from studies with repeated observations experimental designs or with longitudinal designs may also be modelled The book starts with a four chapter section containing an introduction to the framework The remaining chapters describe models for ordered category data multilevel models models for differential item functioning multidimensional models models for local item dependency and mixture models It also includes a chapter on the statistical background and one on useful software In order to make the task easier for the reader a unified approach to notation and model description is followed throughout the chapters and a single data set is used in most examples to make it easier to see how the many models are related For all major examples computer commands from the SAS package are provided that can be used to estimate the results for each model In addition sample commands are provided for other major computer packages Paul De Boeck is Professor of Psychology at K U Leuven Belgium and Mark Wilson is Professor of Education at UC Berkeley USA They are also co editors along with Pamela Moss of a new journal entitled Measurement Interdisciplinary Research and Perspectives The chapter authors are members of a collaborative group of psychometricians and statisticians centered on K U Leuven and UC Berkeley

Handbook of Item Response Theory Wim J. van der Linden, 2018-02-19 Drawing on the work of 75 internationally acclaimed experts in the field Handbook of Item Response Theory Three Volume Set presents all major item response models classical and modern statistical tools used in item response theory IRT and major areas of applications of IRT in educational and psychological testing medical diagnosis of patient reported outcomes and marketing research It also covers CRAN packages WinBUGS Bilog MG Multilog Parscale IRTPRO Mplus GLLAMM Latent Gold and numerous other software tools A full update of editor Wim J van der Linden and Ronald K Hambleton s classic Handbook of Modern Item Response Theory this handbook has been expanded from 28 chapters to 85 chapters in three volumes The three volumes are thoroughly edited and cross referenced with uniform

notation format and pedagogical principles across all chapters Each chapter is self contained and deals with the latest developments in IRT

Reaching an Understanding John Sabatini, Elizabeth Albro, Tenaha O'Reilly, 2012-08-14 Reaching an Understanding Innovations in How We View Reading Assessment builds upon the editors previous book Measuring Up Advances in How We Assess Reading Ability by representing some early attempts to apply theory to help guide the development of new assessments and measurement models Reaching an Understanding is divided into two sections assessment learning and instruction connecting text task and reader learner and how to build for the future These sections identify ways to assess students reading comprehension through multiple text sources purpose readings and assessment while a student is reading in order to determine deficits In light of federal legislation towards common core standards and assessments as well as significant national investments in reading and literacy education it is a critical and opportune time to bring together the research and measurement community to address fundamental issues of measuring reading comprehension in theory and in practice

Assessment of Competencies in Educational Contexts Eckhard Klieme, Detlev Leutner, Johannes Hartig, 2008 Covers theoretical psychometric and practical issues related to the assessment of competencies in educational and vocational settings This book is suitable for researchers interested in theoretical and psychometric background of assessment and for readers interested in practical aspects of computer based assessment and evaluation
