What is GURPS?

GURPS stands for "Generic Universal RolePlaying System," the RPG that these rules are condensed from. Why is it called that? Well . . .

"Generic." GURPS starts with simple rules, and builds up to as much optional detail as you like. This abridged version presents the "core rules" that most GMs start with.

"Universal." The basic rule system is designed to emphasize realism. Therefore, it can fit any situation — fantasy or historical, past, present, or future.

"RolePlaying." This is not just a "hack-and-slash" game. The rules are written to make true roleplaying possible — and to encourage it. GURPS is a game in which you take on the persona of another character — and pretend, for a little while, to be that character.

"System." Over 160 different books have been published for GURPS, in eight different languages (so far). It is one of the recognized standards for role-playing, worldwide.

About GURPS Lite

This is the boiled-down "essence" of GURPS: all the fundamental rules, but not the options and embellishments that often confuse new players. Once you're comfortable with these rules, you can pick up the GURPS Basic Set and jump right into the action. Experienced Game Masters will, we hope, find this a valuable tool for introducing new players to the game.

Materials Needed for Play

To play, you will need these rules, three six-sided dice, pencils, and scratch paper.

GLOSSARY

GURPS is a roleplaying game (RPG). A roleplaying game is one in which a referee (the Game Master) guides several players through an "adventure" in which they play the parts of fictional characters.

Like any hobby, gaming has its own unique language. To help you understand the concepts and terms used in this game (and other RPGs), we'll start with a few definitions:

Roleplaying Game (RPG): A game in which the players take on the personalities of imaginary individuals, or characters, in a fictional or historical game world, and try to act as those characters would.

Game Master (GM): The referee, who chooses the adventure, talks the players through it, and judges the results.

Character: Any being (person, animal, whatever) played by the GM or a player in a RPG.

Non-player Character (NPC): Any character played by the GM. The GM may control many characters, major and minor.

Player Character (PC): Any character played by one of the players. Typically, each player controls a single character.

Stats, or statistics: Numbers rating a character's abilities, used to determine what each one can and cannot do. See p. 3.

Party: A group of PCs taking part in the adventure.

Game World: A background for play; the setting for an adventure. A GM's own fantasy creation or a published setting created specifically for gaming are both examples.

Adventure: The basic "unit" of play in a RPG, sometimes called a "scenario." A RPG is never over until the players want to end it, but a single adventure will have a beginning and an end. It may last through several sessions of play, or be done in a single evening.

Encounter: One "scene" of an adventure. A meeting between the player characters and one or more NPCs.

Campaign: A continuing series of adventures. A campaign will usually have a continuing cast of player characters, and the same Game Master (or team of GMs). A campaign may move from one game world to another, with a logical reason.

Race: The species to which you belong. Nonhuman characters (elves, dwarves, halflings, and Martians, for example) are common in RPGs.
