First World War Poets:

Poetry of the First World War Tim Kendall, 2013-10-10 The First World War produced an extraordinary flowering of poetic talent poets whose words commemorate the conflict more personally and as enduringly as monuments in stone Lines such as What passing bells for these who die as cattle and They shall grow not old as we that are left grow old have come to express the feelings of a nation about the horrors and aftermath of war This new anthology provides a definitive record of the achievements of the Great War poets As well as offering generous selections from the celebrated soldier poets including Wilfred Owen Siegfried Sassoon Rupert Brooke and Ivor Gurney it also incorporates less well known writing by civilian and women poets Music hall and trench songs provide a further lyrical perspective on the War A general introduction charts the history of the war poets reception and challenges prevailing myths about the war poets progress from idealism to bitterness The work of each poet is prefaced with a biographical account that sets the poems in their historical context Although the War has now passed out of living memory its haunting of our language and culture has not been exorcised Its poetry survives because it continues to speak to and about us

Poets of the First World War Nicola Barber, Patrick Lee-Browne, 2008 Examining the experiences of the soldiers who found artistic expression in their poetry for the horrors of warfare this guide also looks at the historical political and social background which shaped the poetry of the war Five major war poets are looked at in detail Ivor Gurney Wilfred Owen Isaac Rosenberg Siegfried Sassoon and Edward Thomas A lively and authoritative text supported by carefully chosen pictorial and literary evidence makes this book the ideal companion for young students of these influential poets
