Children and Television Gordon L. Berry, Joy Keiko Asamen, 1993-05-25 A worthwhile effort The Hindustan Times Children and Television provides a detailed description of the patterns of representation of different groups on children's television programs including commercial broadcast public broadcast and cable and their potential consequences for the development of people's worldviews Children and Television is a readable and interesting introduction to research on children and television by scholars in a variety of social science disciplines as well as media professions Journal of Broadcasting television's effects on imaginative and creative capabilities of children and the medium's influence on the socialization of youth They also cover the cultural content of Saturday morning television the portrayal of major ethnic and racial minority populations in the United States and the effects these portrayals have on children's attitudes toward these populations and the portrayal of women the elderly and persons with disabilities Classroom Voices on Education and Race Daniel Frio, 2012-10-03 Classroom Voices on Education and Race presents core educational issues with an emphasis on race and the racial achievement gap school culture and curriculum through the unfiltered and poignant voices of high school students Students from urban rural and suburban public schools express a strong desire for a more active role in their classrooms as well as for a curriculum that is more responsive to their world Current students speak out against an increasingly complex and demanding world in which standardized testing serves to detach students from their learning and from their peers They bear witness to increasingly competitive content driven classrooms that minimize open communication and critical thinking and instead foster a culture of cheating And they expose a hidden curriculum that contradicts the learning expectations of formal education In particular they speak to the persistence of racial stereotypes and segregation Burdened by ignorance and misunderstandings students address the need for honest racial dialogue facilitated by adults in their desire to cross the racial divide Educators must listen to the voices from their classrooms in order to better participate in the lives and education of their students Bold Ventures S. Raizen, E.D. Britton, 1996-12-31 This book presents comprehensive results from case studies of five innovations in science education that have much to offer toward understanding current reforms in this field Each chapter tells the story of a case in rich detail with extensive documentation and in the voices of many of the participants the innovators the teachers the students Similarly Volume 3 of Bold Ventures presents the results from case studies of five innovations in mathematics education Volume 1 provides a cross case analysis of all eight innovations Many U.S. readers certainly will be very familiar with the name of at least one if not all of the science innovations discussed in this volume for example Project 2061 and probably with their general substance Much of the education community's familiarity with these arises from the project's own dissemination efforts The research reported in this volume however is one of the few detailed studies of these innovations undertaken by researchers outside the projects themselves Each of the five studies was a large scale effort involving teams of researchers over three years These teams analyzed many documents attended numerous critical project meetings visited multiple sites conducted dozens of individual interviews The team leaders Atkin Huberman Rowe having spent much time with science education over long careers looked at these innovations through many lenses It was a daunting task for each team to sift through the mountains of detail in order to bring the most compelling themes to the surface
