Wertheim, 2012-12-06 From August 24-29 1980 the international Symposium on the Study of Motion Perception Recent Developments and Applications sponsored by NATO and organized by the editors of this book was held in Veldhoven the Netherlands The meeting was attended by about eighty scholars including psychologists neurologists physicists and other scientists from fourteen different countries During the symposium some fifty research papers were presented and a series of tutorial review papers were read and discussed The research presentations have been published in a special issue of the international journal of psychonomics Acta Psychologica Vol 48 1981 The present book is a compilation of the tutorial papers

The tutorials were arranged around early versions of the chapters now appearing in this book. The long discussions at the Veldhoven tutorial sessions resulted in extensive revisions of the texts prior to this publication. Unfortunately this led to a delay in publication but we feel that this was justified by a greater depth of understanding which in our opinion has significantly increased the quality of the book. As they now stand the chapters cover most of the issues relevant to the study of motion perception. Also they clearly reflect the intensive exchange of knowledge that took place during the symposium. As such we think that this book can be used both as an advanced text for students and scientists alike and as a comprehensive reference source.

Structure from Motion using the Extended Kalman Filter Javier Civera, Andrew J. Davison, José María Martínez Montiel, 2011-11-09 The fully automated estimation of the 6 degrees of freedom camera motion and the imaged 3D scenario using as the only input the pictures taken by the camera has been a long term aim in the computer vision community. The associated line of research has been known as Structure from Motion SfM. An intense research effort during the latest decades has produced spectacular advances the topic has reached a consistent state of maturity and most of its aspects are well known nowadays. 3D vision has immediate applications in many and diverse fields like robotics videogames and augmented reality and technological transfer is starting to be a reality. This book describes one of the first systems for sparse point based 3D reconstruction and egomotion estimation from an image sequence able to run in real time at video frame rate and assuming quite weak prior knowledge about camera calibration motion or scene. Its chapters unify the current perspectives of the robotics and computer vision communities on the 3D vision topic. As usual in robotics sensing the explicit estimation and propagation of the uncertainty hold a central role in the sequential video processing and is shown to boost the efficiency and performance of the 3D estimation. On the other hand some of the most relevant topics discussed in SfM by the computer vision scientists are addressed under this probabilistic filtering scheme namely projective models spurious rejection model selection and self calibration
