Health Defence:

Nationhood, Executive Power and the Australian Constitution Peta Stephenson, 2022-09-08 The first comprehensive study of the nature and scope of the nationhood power this book brings a fresh perspective to the scholarship on the powers of the executive branch in Australia The question of when the Federal Executive Government can act without the authorisation of the Parliament is contested and highly topical in Australia In recent judicial decisions Australian courts have suggested that statutory authorisation may not be required where the Federal Executive Government is exercising the nationhood power that is the implied executive power derived from the character and status of the Commonwealth as the national government The Federal Executive Government has relied on this power to implement controversial spending programs respond to national emergencies and exclude non citizens from Australia Together the chapters in this book analyse and evaluate judicial observations about the operation of the nationhood power in these different contexts and the limits which apply to it While the focus of this book is on the nationhood power it also addresses broader issues concerning the relationship between the legislative and executive branches in parliamentary systems of government This book makes an important contribution to the literature on executive power and will appeal to constitutional lawyers scholars and practitioners and those who are involved in the administration of government The Politics of Competence Jane Green, Will Jennings, 2017-10-12 This analysis reveals how issue ownership performance and competence shape public opinion about parties government support and elections over time and cross nationally Innovation Across Central Government Great Britain. National Audit Office, 2009 Government faces increasing pressure to do more with fewer financial resources and with challenges such as climate change and an ageing population will require innovation in public services Departments have started to implement some of the recommendations of the National Audit Office's 2006 report on innovation HC 1447 I session 2005 06 ISBN 9780102942330 but are still not maximising the opportunities to innovate The majority of cases of innovation originate with senior management within departments There is potential to encourage more innovation from front line staff and service users At the front line public servants can be reluctant to put forward ideas where they do not appreciate how innovation relates to the goals of the organisation and can resist change they feel is forced upon them Other barriers include risk averse attitudes within departments and a concentration on targets budgets and high profile national initiatives Departments should develop strategies for encouraging and developing innovation It is not possible to identify exactly how much central government spends on developing innovation but estimates by the NAO suggest that departments have allocated at least 3 billion in the form of innovation budgets and the Department for Innovation Universities and Skills announced a further 2.5 billion to be spent encouraging and supporting innovation from 2008 9 to 2010 11 There are no measures in place to assess the impact of this expenditure Government should make use of the survey work done by the NAO for this report and develop it further to determine how effective this expenditure is Official Journal League of
