An Analysis of the Knowledge and Use of English Collocations by French and Japanese Learners Shino Kurosaki, 2013-11 The present study investigated differences on the knowledge and use of collocations between French and Japanese learners with regard to 1 L1 influence and 2 combinability and transparency influence The test materials included four categories of the lexical collocations 1 verb noun 2 delexicalised verb noun 3 adjective noun and 4 adverb adjective The two types of tasks Multiple Choice Question Tasks and Translation Tasks are performed and the learner corpora are also investigated in order to examine whether the learners from different L1 backgrounds demonstrate different results Though L1 influence by both French and Japanese learners was demonstrated the Japanese learners showed a greater L1 influence in the adjective noun category than the French learners The investigation also found that L1 influence does not necessarily result in accuracy of the collocations With regard to the combinability and transparency influence the results of the two types of tasks followed Kellerman's 1978 remark However some contrasted results were also identified in learner corpus investigation Thus the combinability and transparency influence were not necessarily identified The results of the present study have a potential to improve teaching learning of collocations through recognizing the learners tendencies of learning collocations

A Corpus Study of Collocation in Chinese Learner English Yuanwen Lu, 2016-12-08 Collocation is an important tool in describing lexical behaviour in language and has received increasing attention in recent years Based on two corpora LOCNESS the Louvain Corpus of Native English Essays and MLC the Non English major Mainland Chinese Learner Corpus this book explores the features of Chinese learner English with analysis of grammatical and lexical collocations The findings show that Chinese university students use collocations with considerably less variety and Chinese language and culture exert a substantial influence on their English writing It also discusses ways to tackle the problems Chinese English learners face and the pedagogical implications for teaching English and learning English collocations As one of the first systematic studies to investigate collocations in Chinese learner English based on learner corpora this book not only analyzes how Chinese learners use collocations in their English writing but also provides significant implications for foreign language teaching and learning

Form, Meaning and Function in Collocation Haoda Feng, 2020-04-03 The issue of differences between translational language and native speaker language has become a topic of increasing interest in linguistics and Translation Studies TS One of the primary tasks in this research area is to employ a corpus approach and analyse collocations with authentic language data by comparing comparable corpora consisting of translated and native speaker texts Collocation in linguistics and TS refers to the relationship of co occurrence between lexical items The book shows that examining the use of collocations constitutes an integral part in assessing the naturalness of second language L2 use and therefore can be a valid measure to make a distinction between translational language and native speaker language Nevertheless the role of collocation has not been given enough attention or discussed systematically in TS and to date there are hardly any translation theorists who have clarified the mechanism of collocation in TS by which translators acquire receptive and productive knowledge of collocations in their L2 In addition previous research in this area is largely confined to Indo European languages resulting in a lack of empirical evidence involving Asian languages This book therefore attempts to bridge the gap in the literature and constitute an integral part in the research area
